Course Description

Emotions organize our behaviour and are central to our social interactions. Much of child development is directed by this reciprocal relationship between emotional and social processes. For example, infants are born equipped to express emotions that influence caregiver behaviour, while at the same time caregivers train children to regulate and selectively express emotions. This process continues and becomes more elaborate across expanding social contexts over the course of development.

The course is divided into three parts. In the first section we will explore answers to the and psychological. The next section focuses on temperament in the first 3 years of life when forces of nature and nurture join to establish stable patterns of behaviour. The third section explores the changes that begin in early childhood as the child becomes better at self-regulation. Finally, the fourth section covers the relationships and emotions within those relationships from middle childhood through adolescence.

Intended Student Learning Outcomes

To complete this course, students will demonstrate their ability to:

1. identify and describe trajectories of social and emotional development from infancy through adolescence
2. evaluate, compare, and contrast theoretical perspectives of social and emotional development

Course Format

This is a lecture course with a text. Material on the exams will come from both the text and lectures (approximately 66% from lecture). Lectures will complement (not repeat) the text. I highly recommend that you attend all classes and read the entire book. Please take responsibility for these tasks.

There will be 3 exams (in class) and a partially cumulative final. For each exam, there will be approximately 50% multiple choice and 50% write-in (short answer) questions. The final exam will focus on Section IV of the course but 50% of the questions will pertain to the first three sections.

There are no make-up exams. Any student who misses an exam will receive a zero unless they provide written documentation (i.e., note from a doctor) of the reason. I will do my utmost to accommodate those who have documented an unfortunate circumstance (i.e., reweighting the remaining exams to adjust for the one that was missed).

Course Requirements:

Exam 1 (Feb. 1):	20%
Exam 2 (Mar. 1):	20%
Exam 3 (Mar. 22)	20%
Final:	40%

EXAM POLICY

If you are unable to write an exam (e.g., if you are sick, personal issues, etc.), you must let the instructor know BEFORE the exam time. If you cannot write the exam for some reason, do not sit down to write the exam. In the interest of fairness, you will be graded if you come into the exam room and see the exam. If the final exam is missed, the departmental policies in Psychology will be followed (see below).

Special Accommodations: If you require special accommodations while writing exams, you must notify the instructor as early as possible in the term. You will need to provide a note from Disability Services stating the exact accommodations that are required. At the latest, notification for special accommodation needs to be provided at least one week prior to the midterm, to ensure the accommodation can be provided.

PSYC Departmental Policies

Missed Exams (Finals)

Students who cannot write an exam during the December or April exam period due to a serious, extenuating circumstance (illness, death in the family) must follow the steps below to be eligible, and be available to write a deferred Make up Exam period in January, April, or September.

1. Obtain permission from their instructor to write a deferred exam. This requires notifying your instructor in advance or, under extraordinary circumstances, within 72 hours after, the exam, with appropriate documentation¹. Please use the Request for an Exam Deferral form (<http://www.queensu>

PSYC351 Syllabus 2017

2. Complete and return the instructor-signed Permission for an Incomplete Grade form available on the Arts and Science website and return it to the UG office.
http://www.queensu.ca/artsci/sites/default/files/Permission_for_an_incomplete_grade%2021jan2011.pdf
3. Be available to write the makeup exam during the first available PSYC Make up Exam period in January, April, or September.

NOTE: Students who do not write the makeup exam are advised to drop the course. If a student cannot write the makeup exam due to a serious extenuating circumstance for which they can provide new documentation, they will either be granted a second deferral by their instructor or be supported in their appeal to drop the course after the deadline though this decision rests with the Associate Dean (Studies).

Accommodation after the fact

Once a student has written an exam or submitted an assignment, they may not subsequently be granted accommodation such as being offered a second opportunity to write the exam or assignment or have it count for less than originally specified in the course syllabus (reweighted). Students who cannot perform to the best of their abilities due a serious, extenuating circumstance must inform their instructor before attempting an exam or completing a course to arrange appropriate accommodation. Appeals to change a grade after the fact must be made to the Associate Dean (Studies) and will only be supported by the department in exceptional circumstances.

Policy for Communicating with Teaching Assistant, Course Instructor, and E-mails:

The instructor and teaching assistants for this course would like to be available to you as much as possible. However, because of the large volume of emails that are often produced in courses with this many students, we simply cannot. Therefore, the following policies will be enforced in order to make the most efficient use of your time and our time.

Follow these guidelines for ALL communications with the TA and instructor:

If, after looking through all of the course materials, you find that you need to ask a question outside of class, your first course of action should be electronic. There are two options and you should ask

1. If what you need to communicate is course related, use the discussion board on onQ. There are several topics listed (i.e., Exam 1, course readings). Before writing an email, first check to see
